January / February 2011

As President of ICCRS [International Catholic Charismatic Renewal Services] I am often asked to share something about the present reality of Catholic Charismatic Renewal (CCR) in the world and where I see the Lord leading us in the future. In Revelation 2:7 there is the encouragement to 'listen to what the Spirit is saying to the Church'.

So what is the Holy Spirit saying to us in CCR at this time? This year marks the 50th anniversary of when Pope John XXIII prayed his famous prayer 'renew your wonders in this our day as by a new Pentecost'. The prayer was accompanied by the encouragement to join with the disciples in constant prayer (Acts 1:14).

At the same time as the Church was being renewed through Vatican II, we saw the emergence of Catholic Charismatic Renewal in the USA. Those early years were characterized by a new freedom in the Spirit. There were deep conversions and lives were changed as people received baptism in the Holy Spirit and entered into a 'personal relationship' with Jesus.

When the Israelites were set free from captivity in Egypt they were released into the desert where they remained for 40 years. This was the place of their training and formation. During this time some people fell away either due to sin, lack of perseverance or other distractions. We have seen this in CCR during our short 40 year history. After the desert the Lord led them to the banks of the river Jordan where they could see the Promised Land. I sense that this is where we are at this moment. We are on the threshold of a new season of the Spirit. We need to prepare to cross the Jordan, enter and take possession of the land that the Lord has promised us.

In order to embrace the new season we need to be a people of vision so that we can keep growing and moving forward. Proverbs 29:18, has several English translations e.g., 'without a vision the people perish'. CCR is either growing or dying; we can't stand still. In some parts of the world, Renewal is dynamic and vibrant. I still have many fond memories, of the ICCRS 'love in action' conference in S. Korea. Clearly in that nation CCR is a strong current grace flowing from their deep commitment to intercessory prayer. This grace is made visible through the mission that the Holy Spirit has put into their hearts and there are many projects and services undertaken by those involved in Renewal. In contrast, in some parts of the world it seems that Renewal is perishing, it has grown old and tired and people seem to spend more time nostalgically looking back at what the Lord did in the past than moving forward into the new things that the Lord has in store for them.

Another translation of the verse is, 'without a vision people become rebellious'. In the early days of CCR, we saw the Lord do many wonderful things in our midst. Thankfully, this is still happening in many places. I think of the courageous evangelization project in the Amazon and the creative outreach to university students currently being undertaken by CCR in Brazil. However, rather than

by Fr. Pat Collins, CM

Over the years, Parish Renewal programs have been used in many Dioceses in America, Britain and Ireland. Writing about their efficacy, Fr. Vince Dwyer once observed that, research in Catholic contexts had indicated that mutual distrust between bishops, priests, and lay people was the main impediment to progress. Typically, it was evoked by things such as criticism, broken promises, individualism and resentments. I'm quite convinced that mistrust is also one of the most corrosive problems afflicting the Charismatic Renewal. In this article I want to share a way in which it can be overcome.

A number of years ago, I belonged to a large prayer group. At one point, sixteen of the more experienced members decided to form an auxiliary community group which would meet on a different night. At the inaugural gathering I gave a keynote address which suggested that we should aim to live like the early Christians as depicted in Acts 4:32-36. Through the power of the Holy Spirit they had realized the ancient Greek ideal of friendship by being conformed to the mind and heart of Christ while having all things in common. When I asked for reactions, I was disappointed to find that many of those present thought that this ideal was far too demanding. Happily, however, one of the chief objectors got a word of knowledge. He said, that if we read Sir. 6:14-18, we would get God's perspective on the issue. I quickly found the passage. It was about friendship!

Commitment to stop criticizing others

Some time later, during a memorable meeting, one member of the Community group read Lk 6:36-39 and shared how this passage, about unconditional mercy, had inspired her. Then she spontaneously knelt on the floor and said: "I promise to refrain from criticizing, judging or condemning anyone in this group, either in thought or word. If I break this promise, I will publicly confess my fault and seek forgiveness." There was a stunned silence. Then, one by one, everyone present, freely knelt down and made the same promise.

That Spirit prompted agreement had remarkable effects. Firstly, Jesus assured us that, "whatever measure you use in giving - large or small - it will be used to measure what is given back to you" Lk. 6:38. Justifying grace, as we well know, is not the fruit of good works. Although this unmerited gift of God is always freely available to us, we only experience its liberating power in so far as we put aside the scales of justice, by refraining from, judging, condemning or resenting other people while offering them the undeserved gift of our merciful love. Like a sanctuary lamp within, members of the community group continued to be consciously aware of God's saving grace as long as we maintained a merciful attitude.

Trust levels grew

Secondly, our trust levels grew greatly. As a result we felt more closely united than ever before. We were no longer afraid that anyone would talk or think in a critical way about us, behind our backs. Our community group became a place of psychological safety where each person could blossom, by being his or her own true self.

Thirdly, while we had always been committed to praising the Lord, when we became more united, there was more joy. A new gift of enthusiastic praise was released, one which was both loud and long. Some of our favorite scriptural verses were from Sir. 43:31-34 which encourage people to redouble their praises, because God is more than worthy of all the appreciation we can express.

Growth in spiritual gifts

Fourthly, although we had often desired the gifts of the Spirit, only a few of them had been granted to us. But when we made love our aim by agreeing to fast from criticism and to praise God with conviction, all the gifts described in 1 Cor 12:8-10 were poured out on different members of the group, including the gifts of prophecy and healing.

Fifthly, we also found that, as our unity of mind and heart increased, we not only got more opportunities to evangelize as individuals and as a group, but our attempts to spread the good news were more effective. I can remember one parish mission we conducted in the mountains of Tyrone which was anointed, from beginning to end, even to the point of miracles. As Acts 4:33 attests, fruitful evangelization is not only energized by loving communities, they bear experiential witness to the truth of the message that is preached.

Difference between judging and criticising

Over the years I have discovered a number of implications that follow from these points. As soon as I stopped criticizing members of my group, in either thought or word, I also found that I began to stop criticizing people outside the group such as relatives, workmates and people in the media. While I may have to judge what they do, I try to refrain from judging them. It's a matter of hating the sin but loving the sinner. I have also found that, to stop criticizing others, I have had to stop mentally criticizing myself. Nowadays, if I make a mistake, I try not to mutter such things as, "you stupid idiot!" Members of any group will inevitably let one another down, either as a result of weakness or malice. In cases like these, it is important to devise ways of resolving conflicts in a constructive manner. For example, every now and then, a trained facilitator could be invited to help the members of the group to talk about their grievances in an open rather than an accusatory way. Ideally, whenever conflicts arise, the members of the group should be willing go to one another to explain how they feel and why. Then, when necessary, forgiveness can be either asked for, or offered.

Be of one mind

St Paul once wrote, "Dear brothers and sisters in Christ, I appeal to You by the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ to stop arguing among yourselves. Let there be real harmony so that there won't be divisions in the community. I plead with you to be of one mind, united in thought and purpose" 1 Cor. 1:10. I know from experience that when the members of Charismatic groups, of whatever kind, have made an agreement like the one mentioned above, it has not only been in accord with the will of God, it has also born abundant fruit, especially that of effective evangelization.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

developing a deeper dependence upon the Lord, we have sometimes become rebellious, taken control and done our own things. This blocks the Holy Spirit and we fail to carry out his perfect will. As St. Paul warned the Galatians, 'what began in the Spirit has ended in the flesh' (Gal 3: 3).

A third translation of Proverbs 29:18 reads, 'without a vision the people get out of hand'. It seems that when we lack future orientation things become stale then it is easy for us to become inward looking and for our energy to become diverted. As a result, we may begin to compete with, judge or criticize other groups and realities in the Renewal. Why are there so many tensions, divisions, and relationship problems in the CCR when one of the main characteristics of the Holy Spirit is unity? Clearly there is a need for repentance and reconciliation. Our pride, squabbling, and immature behavior have led to the whole body becoming weaker.

We must beg the Lord for forgiveness, and ask him to change our hearts. Then we will be able to move forward with vision in unity.

I sense that at this time of transition there is a strong call to deep intercession. Many battles are won in prayer. Through intercession, God can change the destiny of a nation. He can give us the insight, courage and ability to act decisively and strategically so that his Kingdom is advanced. As we journey towards the golden jubilee of CCR in 2017, we need to be guided step by step.

Like Joshua we need to have the faith and confidence to claim our rightful inheritance and to undo the works of the enemy. Be ready then to embrace this new season with courage and enthusiasm. Our God is doing new things and we need to be open to the surprises of the Spirit.
